

The Spider-Web of Federal Discretionary Grants

Not all state agencies are listed. — state — federal

Think of each point where lines intersect as a federal law in which money is granted to the states on condition that the state abide that law and all connecting laws. It is easy to see that in order to get one grant, the state subjugates to federal control.